The Janesville Daily Gazette.

VOLUME 26 | Entered at the Post Office at Janesville Wis., as second-class matter. | JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1882. | Published Every Evening Except Sunday, at $7 a Year. | NUMBER 3

The Legislature adjourned last year on the 4th of April, and this year an adjournment will not be reached much before that time.

The Senate and Assembly apportionment plan has been agreed upon and has been introduced in the Senate. There has been no change in the Assembly districts of Rock county.

The Republican congressional caucus at Washington decided to oppose the reduction of the tax on whisky and tobacco. The Democrats, of course, favor free whisky, and plenty of it.

Senator Sawyer, has rented the house in Washington belonging to ex-Postmaster General Creswell, and pays $3,600 a year rent with the furniture. Senator Sawyer is wise enough not to build any house in Washington.

While Mrs. Garfield will not have anything to do with the management of the farm at Mentor, she has directed a number of improvements to the farm buildings, and men are now at work there. Her fine span of bays have been moved from Washington to quarters on the farm It is likely that Mrs. Garfield will pass part of the spring and most of the summer there. Her boys will be with her.

One of the enterprises recently entered upon by the American Express company is the transferring of money in small sums by money orders at the rate of five cents for sums up to $5, and eight cents up to $10. The orders are to be sold at all of their offices, but at present paid at only 457 of them. They are good for three months after date of issue, and may be bought in lots, and the place payable inserted at convenience.

This week, there were married at Oil City, Pennsylvania, Major John H. Camp, aged 92, and Mrs. M. A. Rich, aged 74 years. They had been acquainted only four days before the wedding took place. Mrs. Rich was a poor widow, and was about to be sent to the poor house, when a friend of the couple suggested it would be a good thing for the Major to marry her. They were introduced to each other on Saturday and were married the following Wednesday. The Major has a comfortable home and plenty of property.

The suffering of the inhabitants on the sunken lands on the Lower Mississippi has never been equalled in the annals of the disasters which have been visited upon man. A late dispatch says that hundreds of families are living upon rafts, eating dead animals, the floating carcasses of which can be seen in every direction, with large slices cut from them by these starving creatures, who grasp at everything, no matter how revolting. The Tyronga, a small river running out from the St. Francis, with the Little river, and other points, are thickly settled with whites who are on rafts, scaffolds and logs. Families are huddled together like animals, praying for food. For a distance of 300 miles no land is to be seen.

In the North American Review for April, Governor Eli H. Murray, of Utah, treats of the existing crisis in the political fortunes of that Territory. According to the present method of local government there, the minority of the population, the Gentiles, though they possess the greater part of the wealth of the territory, exclusive of farm property, and though they constitute by far the most enlightened and enterprising portion of the community, are practically without a voice in legislation. The author proposes a drastic, yet entirely practicable remedy for these and all other evils prevalent in Utah. An article entitled "Why they Come," by Edward Self, is devoted to the consideration of the many important questions connected with European immigration to this country. Dr. Henry A. Martin, replying to a recent article by Henry Bergh, defends the practice of vaccination, citing official statistics to prove the efficacy of bovine virus as a prophylactic against the scourge of small-pox, E. L. Godkin has an article on "The Civil Service Reform Controversy;" Senator Riddleberger on "Bourbonism in Virginia;" and General Albert Ordway on "A National Militia." Finally there is a paper of extraordinary interest on the exploration of the ruined cities of Central America. The author, Mr. Charnay, has discovered certain monuments which conclusively prove the comparative recentness of those vast remains of a lost civilization. The Review is published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

WHAT THE STATE JOURNAL SAYS.

The call of the bar of the Twelfth judicial circuit upon Mr. Bennett to be a candidate for Circuit Judge, is meeting with a warm reception in other parts of the State. The State Journal, in a recent issue, pays Mr. Bennett the following compliment, which his many friends deeply appreciate;

"Among the Circuit Judges to be elected next spring will be one for the twelfth judicial circuit, composed of the counties of Jefferson, Rock and Green, and we learn with much pleasure that the bar of that circuit are almost unanimous in calling upon Hon. John R. Bennett, of Janesville, to be a candidate. It is understood that Hon. H. S. Conger the present judge of that circuit, declines a re-election, and petitions very numerously signed have been presented to Mr. Bennett to stand for election. Mr. Bennett has been one of the foremost members of the Wisconsin bar for over thirty years and has had an extensive practice both before the Circuit Courts of the several circuits and the Supreme court of the State. Before them all he enjoys an enviable reputation. His long experience as a lawyer, his extensive legal acquirements and his sound and discriminating judgment abundantly qualify him for the position to which his many friends and legal brethren have invited him, and their confidence, partiality and friendship are well bestowed in so doing. We do not learn that there is to be any opposing candidate, and Mr. Bennett, from present appearences, will receive a unanimous vote—a compliment he well deserves."

THE LEGISLATURE.

Special to the Gazette.

ASSEMBLY.

MADISON, March 18.—The Assembly held a session this morning, at which only 52 members were present, 25 being absent without leave. Harrington introduced a joint resolution which lies over under the rules to adjourn sine die at noon of Tuesday, March 28th.

In the Assembly the following bills were passed:

Authorizing the city of Eau Claire to build Water Works.

Relating to the public library of Milwaukee.

Authorizing Columbia county to appropriate money to rebuild the bridges washed away by floods.

More definitely fixing the fees of lumber inspectors.

The Assembly bill was killed prescribing the fees of sheriffs, constables, marshals and other executive officers.

SENATE.

Two Senate bills were killed relating to proceedings in probate and garnisheement.

Adjourned until Monday evening.

A large number of the members went into Milwaukee on the noon train to hear Booth in Hamlet to-night.

MADISON, Wis., March 17.—The members of the Legislature who supported the restoration of capital punishment are exasperated at the action of the Assembly in refusing to order to a third reading a bill for that purpose which had passed by a large majority. Mr. Pooler, of LaCrosse, offered a resolution to-day which would make the anti-hanging men back down from their position or indorse the petition to President Arthur to commute Guiteau's sentence to imprisonment for life. It failed to work through mismanagement. It was attached to the resolution for Sergeant Mason's pardon as an amendment, and the amendment was laid upon the table. Pooler will try again next week, and atempt to obtain a test veto.

The Assembly to-day killed the bill to remove the capital of the State to Milwaukee, and to use the present State house as an asylum for the chronic insane.

The bill to wind up the affairs of the Wisconsin Railroad Farm Mortgage Land company May 1, and direct that a final dividend be declared, was indefinitely postponed by the Assembly to-day.

Members are tiring of legislative work, and are slaughtering three-fourths of the bills upon the calendar each day.

FIRES.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 17.—Forty cane fields in the jurisdiction of Molina-del-Sur were burned. There are smaller fires in other sections.

FARIBAULT, Minn., March 17.—About 1 o'clock to-day the Barron house caught fire and burned to the ground. The postoffice was in the same building, and will have to seek another quarter. A high wind prevailing when the fire commenced seemed to threaten the whole town, but the fire company soon got control. The amount of property destroyed will probably be valued at $25,000, only half of which is covered by insurance.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 17.—Konold's gin distillery, at Grapevine Point, burned this morning. Loss, $30,000; insurance, $10,000. Before the engines were called away from this fire, another alarm was sounded, caused by the burning of Calvary Baptist church. Only the steeple and walls are standing. Loss, $75,000; insurance, $50,000. Both fires were incendiary.

MASON.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The sympathy for Sergeant Mason has taken the form of petitions for his pardon and contributions for his family. A military gentleman expresses the opinion that the anxiety for Mason's release is excessive and premature. He says he was placed on guard to aid the civil authorities in preventing the mob from getting possession of the assassin, and he committed the act which it was his duty to prevent. It would be mockery to pardon him.

INGERSOLL AND TALMAGE.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Colonel Ingersoll has paid New York a flying visit. He was seen by a reporter in regard to his recent lecturing tour in North Carolina. "Well sir," he said, "I am sorry that my onslaughts should have been the cause of so much annoyance to the Governor and the rest of the officers of the State, particularly as expense will be entailed by Mr. Talmage going out there to bring back my convertsto Christianity. That Mr. Talmages should have been selected for this purpose is absurbd, in addition to being a huge joke, for I understand that at the present time the congregation belonging to his church is in such a plight as to suggest the necessity of a long religious revival. The next thing I may expect is to awake some morning and find no atheists are to be allowed to live."

Popularity.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL has obtained great popularity, from its intrinsic value as a reliable medicine, in curing hoarseness, and all irritations of the throat, diseases of the chest, etc., For these it is an incomparable plumonic.

FLOOD SUFFERERS.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Speaker laid before the House to-day a communication from the secretary of war transmitting estimates of the number of persons made destitute by the overflow of the Mississippi river and its tributaries The communication estimates the number of persons destitute at 85,000, as follows: Missouri, 2,200; Illinois, 2,000; Kentucky, 800; Tennessee, 5,000; Mississippi, 30,000; Arkansas, 20,000; Louisiana, 25,000. Rations distributed, 713,000. The appropration already made is sufficient to purchase 800,000 rations of a substantial kind. The supply will be exhausted in Arkansas, Mississippi, and Louisana about the 21st. No estimate can be made of the time during which the necessity for Congressional aid will continue. No further demands are expected from Illinois and Kentucky, but from Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi, the department has information the necessity for subsistence will continue for a period variously estimated at from thirty to sixty days. The department has no information from Louisiana, but it is thought it may be placed on the same category as Mississippi.

ROSCOE CONKLING.

ST. LOUIS, March 17—Roscoe Conkling has been engaged to make the presentation before the Supreme Court of the case of Charles P. Kring, the famous murderer, of this city. The matter will come up at the October term of court, and involves the question whether the law under which Kring was tried and convicted is not ex post facto.

It is useless to deny that the brightest and fairest fall easy victims to consumption, and equally fruitless to ignore the fact that decline has its origin in many cases in neglected catarrh. Sanford's Radical Cure is a pure, sweet, balsamic specific.

Death to rats, mice, roaches and ants; Parson's Exterminator. Barns, granaries and households cleared in a single night. No fear of bad smells. Best and cheapest vermin killer in the world. Sold everywhere.

GRANT FAMILY.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Preparations are being made at the Executive Mansion in honor of the visit of General and Mrs. Grant, who are expected to arrive here next Tuesday to pay a long deferred visit to the President. The entire Grant family will be present on the first day of the visit, as Jesse and Ulysses are now in the city, and Mrs. Sartoris will return from a visit to friends to receive her father and mother at the depot. Contrary to his usual custom, General Grant, instead of stopping with his friend General Beale, will make his headquarters at the White House. His visit is said to have no political significance whatever, but is simply of a personal nature, out of respect to an old and esteemed friend. A grand reception will be given in honor of the distinguished visitors, which it is said will eclipse anything of the kind ever given in Washington.

A POPULAR TONIC

For Weak Lungs and Consumption

No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitutions, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye.—Chicago Times.

Fun In a Stage Coach.

Wyoming Kit, correspondent of the Detroit Free Press has had some varied experiences while traveling in the far West. Respecting a stage coach incident, he says:

Just upon the outskirts we come to a halt, and a moment later a tall, angular, sour-visage woman came prancing up to the door. Craning her neck so she could look into the coach, and said, in a voice that an asthmatic sand-hill crane might well envy: "Slide along you fellers! Slide along, 'an make room for your Aunt Snort. Driver, take this 'yar box up with you, an' be keerful of it. If you break a dish o' the lot in thar' you'll find your neck in the same condition in a second arter I find it out!"

We "slid along" and made room for the queer female, who scrambled in and took a seat beside Forbes. Again we started, and wishing to appear sociable to our new companion, I asked:

"Going somewhere madam?"

She shot a glance at me that chilled me from head to foot, and in that same crane-like voice, replied:

"Course I be. Doesn't look like I war' a standin' still, do it? I'm a goin' down to Spanish Fork to see my darter Amandy, her as went to third to Bishop Sparks at the last conference. Amandy has been a ailin' an' I'm a goin' down to nuss her fer a few days. Who be you?"

"I am a journalist, madam; a humble soldier in the great field of American journalism."

"You be, eh? Whar' do you live?"

"At no particular point, madam. To-day I am here; to-morrow there. My note-book to-day may receive jottings from which I will tell the world of this beautiful valley, and my next letter may be penned away up amid the everlasting snows of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Yes, madam I am a wanderering scribe."

"Wal, that's all Dutch to me. Yer good on slingin' palaver, anyhow. I don't know wat journalism air, but I reckon it's something folks had orter be in jail fer, an' I warn you now, young man, that if you try any o' yer games on old Aunt Snort, you'll git pulverized so fine that yer own mother couldn't tell yer from a worn-out dishcloth. Just keep yer distance, or you'll think the devil's turned a tornado loose on you!"

I had no very craving desire to pursue the conversation, and so allowed it to drop. Forbes and Lane were convulsed with suppressed laughter, but I was obliged to sit there.

Presently we struck a rocky stretch, and then the fun began. The driver appeared to be anxious to get to some place in a given time, and did not slacken his speed, and soon the old coach began to rock and tumble about in the wildest manner. We held on to the handstraps like grim death. All at once the forward wheels of the coach struck a ditch and I went flying across the middle seat with a cry of "murder!" and landed right on the old woman's lap, my arms around her, while my nose plowed up her wrinkled cheek in the most affectionate manner imaginable. As I regained my feet I received a bat over the head from her parasol that drove my plug hat down until it sat square on my shoulders, and, the next instant, was shot back into my seat by a kick in the abdomen that doubled me up like a carpenter's rule. As I went back like a rocket the old fiend shouted:

"Take that, you dod-dratted villian, tryin' to hug a decent woman an' the mother o' fourteen children. I thought you war' a scoundrel the minit I sot eyes on you, you dirty, onprincipled durned imitation of a man. I'll teach you to kiss me! I'll teach you to hug me till every bone in my body crack. I'll l'arn you who to make yer advances to!" and she favored me with another belt over the head that drove my neck two inches into my body.

Excuses were vain—the old heathen would not be convinced that I did not purposely throw myself into her skinny arms. While we were endeavoring to pacify her the stage gave a tremendous lurch and hurled us all up into a bunch in one corner, the old woman underneath yelling murder. Somehow she got her teeth fastned in one of Lane's ears, and he joined in the cry. The driver stopped the coach and sprang down from his seat and began to pull us out, scattering us promiscuously around in the dusty highway. As the old woman came out she attacked us with rocks and might have injured some one had not the driver seized her arms from behind and chucked her back into the coach. The rest of us climbed to the top and rode to Provo, and never were weary travelers more rejoiced at the near end of a journey than were we when we hove in sight of the town. Lane's ear was bleeding, my nose was skinned by the brim of my hat, as it went down over it, and Forbes was bruised and sore all over. We alighted at the hotel amid a renewed shower of abuse from the old woman, who told our landlord that we were a pack of thieves and murderers, and that the people ought to turn out and hang us. The driver explained the matter to him and he soon made us as comfortable as his limited facilities would allow.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

A Mother's Diary.

Morning! Baby on the floor,
Making for the fender;
Sunlight seems to make it sneeze,
Baby "on a bender?"
All the spools upset and gone,
Chairs drawn into file,
Harnessed strings all strung across,
Ought to make one smile.
Apron clean, curls smooth, eyes blue
(How these charms will dwindle),
For I rather think—don't you—
Baby "is a swindle?"

Noon! A tangled, silken floss
Getting in blue eyes;
Apron that will not keep clean
If a baby tries!
One blue shoe untied, and one
Underneath the table;
Chairs gone mad, and blocks and toys
Well as they are able;
Baby in a high chair, too,
Yelling for his dinner.
Spoon in mouth; I think—don't you—
Baby "is a sinner?"

Night! Chairs all set back again,
Blocks and spools in order;
One blue shoe beneath the mat
Tells of a marauder;
Apron folded on a chair,
Plaid dress torn and wrinkled;
Two pink feet kicked pretty bare,
Little fat knees krinkled;
In his crib, and conquered, too,
By sleep, blessed evangel,
Now I surely think—don't you—
Baby "is an angel?"

Young People at a Party.

I remember that when I was quite young going to a party was nearly as much a trial to me as a pleasure. Being diffident, I dreaded entering the room, and encountering the eyes of the people already assembled there, and, once fairly in, I was overshadowed all the evening by the dreadful necessity of, by-and-by, retiring. Beside, I felt a sense of responsibility which was very oppressive, and was so afraid of not doing or saying what was expected of me that I moved and acted awkwardly, and no doubt looked perfectly miserable.

Perhaps some of you have had experiences similar to mine. Now let me tell you that I have lived to laugh at my foolish shyness, and to be very sorry for boys and girls who suffer from the same thing. When you are invited to a companyf the first thing in order is to reply to the invitation. This is polite, whether you accept or not, and it is imperative if you decline. Send your answer as soon as possible, in some such simple phrase as this: "Harold [or Florence] thanks Mrs. —— for her kind invitation for Thursday evening, and accepts it with pleasure," or "declines it with real regret," as the case may be. Arrived at your friend's house you will be directed to the proper place for the removal of your wraps and the arrangement of your toilet, and then you have only to proceed to the parlor, where your hostess will relieve you from embarrassment by meeting you at once. She is, of course, the first person whom you are to greet. Having spoken to her you are at liberty to find other friends. Do not think that people are looking at you, or noticing your dress or your looks. They are doing nothing of the kind. Engage heartily in whatever amusement is provided for the occasion, but do not put yourself needlessly forward. If spoken to, reply modestly but intelligently, even though for the moment there may be a hush in the room. If you really wish to enjoy yourself seek out somebody who seems to be more a stranger than yourself, and try to do something for his or her pleasure. Forget that you are not acquainted with everybody, and remember that it is your duty to help your hostess in making her party a success. Should your greatest enemy be present, you must, of course, be perfectly civil and agreeable in your manner to him, for in your friend's house you are both under a flag of truce.

When you say good night to your entertainers, be sure to thank them for the pleasure you have had. Do not stay too late, but avoid being the first to go, or, if you must leave early, do it as quietly as possible, lest your withdrawal should be the signal for others to leave, thus breaking up the party too soon.—Harper's Young People.

Dollie's Day at Nahant.

In the first place Dollie dreamed all the night before of the beautiful time she was going to have the next day down on the rocks at Nahant.

Everybody was going; which meant papa, mamma, Aunt Maudie, Aunt Gus and the rest; and, beside, Mr. and Mrs. Sam were to take little Nellie and Sammy and meet them somewhere on the road. They were to drive down, with basketloads of dinner strapped on behind the carryall and buggy, and have a picnic on the rocks.

Wasn't Miss Dollie delighted? 'and didn't her blue eyes sparkle and dance when they started off the lawn, leaving grandma behind to take care of the house?

They met Mr. Sam's carryall on the road, and little Nellie's face and Sammy's eyes were as bright as Dollie's at the prospect of the "beautiful time" on the rocks.

"Surely there was never such a spot for jumping in all the world," thought Dollie and Nellie, and so their bright pink and blue skirts were seen whisking around over the rocks like two birds.

Such sights as they saw, too! Down in the little pools of sea-water that lay in the notches of the rocks, Dollie discovered the funny things. They were tiny, pale, pinkish-green things, about the size of a large pea; their edges were scalloped, and they looked for all the world like a set of little cups turned upside down on the rocks. Great clusters of them were clinging to the sides of the rocks, and, while Dollie watched quietly, some of them opened a little slit that looked like a mouth, and darted out the slenderest and tiniest of tongues, finer than the finest hair, and arranged in a series of loops. With these fine lassoos they seemed to be catching the mites of bugs and worms that swim around in the sea-water and which are invisible to the naked eye.

"Oh, auntie dear, what are these funny little things, and what are they doing?" cried Dollie, from where she lay flat on the rock, intently watching the curious performance.

"Why, those are baby barnacles, Dollie," answered auntie; "they are a kind of shell fish, and sometimes grow in such quantities to the sides of ships as to impede their progress. They also grow on rocks and bits of driftwood."

"Are they alive, then?" asked Dollie, in wonderment.

"Why, yes, and are eating their dinners I should judge, from the looks of that voracious one," replied auntie, pointing to one larger than the rest, who was keeping up an incessant opening and closing of his mouth and throwing out of his curious fish net.

"Give me a hair pin, auntie, and let me tickle him," said Dollie, laughing.

"You may just touch one lightly, Dollie, but don't hurt it."

"Why, can those things feel, auntie?"

"It may be they can, so don't crush it. God made it to live or it would not be here."

Dollie stooped down over the pool again, and with the point of the long hair-pin just lightly touched one of the open mouths of the curious shells. Instantly it closed. One could almost imagine it snapped, and the barnacle put on the stoniest and hardest sort of expression as though it had said, "If you thought I was alive, you are mistaken; I am very dead, indeed, nothing but a piece of rock."

"Look, auntie, aren't they the queerest little things?" cried Dollie; "who ever would have thought there was anything alive in a little pool of sea water. Isn't the earth awful full, auntie? animals and folks and fishes, and, down in this bowlful of water, periwinkles putting out their heads for something to eat, and barnacles fishing for their food. Everything is full, isn't it?"

"Yes, darling," replied auntie, "there is life everywhere; on the earth, in the sea, creatures are telling of His majesty, who with almighty and undying love made all the world and 'the fullness thereof.'"

"Dinner is yeddy," shouted little Sammy, and Dollie hurried off to find her luncheon. The party were all gathered on the flattest rock, where they had spread a cloth and were "fixing dinner." How good it tasted; chicken and biscuit and ham sandwiches and red lobsters whose delicate little claws tasted of the sea.

Dollie eyed Nellie's mother's basket wistfully, for she saw a loaf of delicious chocolate cake there, and her mother had only made sponge. Mrs. Sam saw the eager eyes, and then the cake was cut and shared, and Dollie declared to herself that "Nellie Sam's mother was just magnificent!"

"We'll have a sail in the yacht after luncheon," said papa; at which news all the little eyes grew two sizes bigger.

"Off on the big sea?" cried little Sammy.

"Yes, and get a taste of salt water," replied papa, smiling.

It was delightful for awhile, then Dollie began to feel dizzy, and presently she laid her head down in mamma's lap and felt "horrid." Nellie and Sammy stopped laughing, and pretty soon Sammy was sick and cried. Then mamma told the skipper to take them all home, as she didn't think they liked the taste of the salt water; and, when they jumped off on land again, Dollie shuddered and said: "I like the rocks a great deal better than the waves, and I think the little barnacles are a great deal happier down in their little pools of sea water among the rocks than they would be if they went to sea on ships."

Auntie and papa laughed and said that Dollie was no sailor, and then they drove home along the beach. The sun had on his bathing robes of purple and gold as he went down into the ocean, and, though Dollie was half asleep and very tired, she told grandma, when she got home, all about the periwinkles and the barnacles and the delightful day she spent on the rocks at Nahant.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876, I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced take DR WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles, and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared, and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists. 1

Webster's Knife And Fork.

When Daniel Webster's father found that his son was not robust enough to make a successful farmer, he sent him to Exeter to prepare for college, and found a home for him among a number of other students in the family of "old Squire Clifford" as we of a younger generation have always heard him called. Daniel had up to this time led only the secular life of a country farmer's boy, and, though the New-Hampshire farmers have sent out many heroes as firm and true as the granite rock in the pasture, there cannot be among the hard and the homely work which such a life implies the little finenesses of manner which good society demands. Daniel was one of these diamonds of the first water, but still in the rough, and needed some cutting and polishing to fit him to shine in the great world in which he was to figure so conspicuously.

None saw this more clearly than the sensible old Squire. The boy had one habit at table of which the Squire saw it would be a kindness to cure him. When not using his knife and fork he was accustomed to hold them upright in his fists on either side of his plate. Daniel was a bashful boy of very delicate feelings, and the Squire feared to wound him by speaking to him directly on the subject. So he called aside one of the other students with whom he had been longer acquainted and told him his dilemma. "Now" said he, "I want you this noon at the table, to hold up your knife and fork as Daniel does. I will speak to you about it, and we will see if the boy does not take a hint for himself."

The young man consented to be the scape-goat for his fellow-student, and several times during the meal planted his fists on the table, with his knife and fork as straight as if he had received orders to present arms. The squire drew his attention to his position, courteously begged his pardon for speaking of the matter, and added a few words on the importance of young men correcting such little habits before going out into the world. The student thanked him for his interest and advice, and promised reform, and Daniel's knife and fork were never from that day seen elevated at table.

When, after a vacation, Daniel's father brought the lad for a second term to Exeter, he put in his saddlebag a good fat turkey from the Franklin farm which he gave to the squire as an expression of his gratitude for Daniel's improved manners. We have never heard further particulars but we hope the self-sacrificing student, got the "lucky bone" when the fowl was served.

Ordering a Dinner.

Mr. John Codman, an ex-sea captain, furnishes the New York Post with an experience of his, in old times, with his employer living in New York.

One day a captain who had discharged his cargo, and whose ship lay outside of mine, said: "Has the old man asked you to dine with him yet?" "No, he hasn't," I replied. "Well, he will pretty soon," he answered. "He does that by all of us, and when he has done it there is an end of his civilities." "What sort of a family is it?" I asked. "Are there any daughters?" Remember that was forty years ago. "Family! Daughters! Why, bless your soul, he he won't ask you to his house. He'll take you up to Delmonico's and give you a bowl of warm water and a beefsteak. That's dining with him." I believe that the old Shellback "spoke whereof he did know," and yet, as a beefsteak is never amiss, I resolved to profit by the invitation in case it should be given. It came on the very next day.

"I shall be happy to have you dine with me to day," said the dignified merchant, in his most affable tone.

"Thank you, sir," I replied, "if the ladies will excuse me for not appearing in a dress coat."

"Oh, ah, well," he answered, somewhat disconcerted, but immediately recovering his self-possession, "if you feel any delicacy about that, suppose we dine at Delmonico's?" He had cornered me; but in the end he was cornered himself.

Having assented to the arrangement, he suggested that I should call at the counting-room shortly before three o'clock and we would walk up together. We accordingly started at the appointed hour, walked socially arm in arm along South street, while those anxious skippers who could expect no more dinners looked on and hitched up their slack waistbands. At the corner of Wall street my host was button-holed by an excited exchange broker, and forthwith there ensued a lively dispute as to whether the bill under discussion was to be drawn at thirty or sixty days' sight. Observing my patient attitude as I leaned against the lamp-post, an idea more brilliant in its results for me than for him occurred to the senior. "Captain," he said, "I shall be detained here a few minutes. It will be a saving of time if you will go on and order the dinner."

"Certainly, sir," I replied. "What shall I order?"

"Oh, anything you please," was the satisfactory answer. "I shall be quite suited with your selection."

An old shipowner of Boston was accustomed to say that he never gave his captains instructions. "I always," he said, "give 'em point blank to go where they are mind to." I hope they were too conscientious to take the advantage of the carte blanche which Mr. Waterman doubtless gave them that I took in this instance. I proceeded with such a rapid pace to Delmonico's that when my entertainer arrived the dinner was ready to be served, and the champagne, as our French friends say, was struck with ice in the cooler alongside of the table. That was his first occasion for astonishment, which received another addition on the appearance of the turtle soup, another at the sole au gratin, another at the canvas-back ducks, which was not lessened when those delicate apple fritter were followed by the stragglers in the rear, cheese, ice cream, nuts, grapes and black coffee. To do justice to the excellent Pelatiah Perit—whose name thus far I have abstained from mentioning—after his first surprise he entered heartily into the joke and ate heartily of the dinner. I told him all about it—how I had been living on salt beef and hard tack of late, and how the rum had given out, and then, as he beamed benignly upon me, I told him what those other malicious skippers had said. And then, when the repast was over, what do you think he did? Why, he called for the best Habanas Delmonico had, although he did not himself smoke, and told me to put the bunch in my pocket. Nor was that the end of it. He invited me to dine there again, and he invited the others, too. And we were all willing to let him select from the bill of fare, although I don't really think that we ever again had a dinner so appetizing in all its appointments as the one for which I catered myself.

A DRY GOODS firm on Main street have what they call a reversible mitten. It is made with a thumb on each side, so that it can be worn on either hand. The other day a customer who had been on a prolonged spree came in and looked at one of the mittens for a long while, with a very serious expression, as if revolving some great truth in his mind. Finally he braced up an said: "I know what them's fur. They are so 'at a man can't get so (hic) drunk that he can put his gloves on the wrong (hic) hand. Gimme me one."

Mr. J. Marsh, Bank of Toronto, Ont., writes: "Billiousness and dyspepsia seem to have grown up with me; having been a sufferer for years, I have tried many remedies, but with no lasting result until I used your BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. They have been truly a blessing to me, and I cannot speak too highly of them." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

ORIGIN OF FAMILIAR PHRASES.

THE LAST FEATHER WHICH BREAKS THE HORSE'S BACK.

This phrase was first written by Bramhall in 1645, in consequence of a conversation between Hobbes and himself, but was not published until 1655. The paragraph in which it appears (Abp. Bramhall's "Vindication of True Liberty Against Mr. Hobbes") is as follows: "The last dictate of the judgment concerning the good or bad that may follow on any action is not properly the whole cause, but the last part of it, and yet may be said to produce the effect necessarily in such a manner as the last feather may be said to break a horse's back, when there were so many laid on before as there wanted but that to do it."

DURANCE VILE.

This literary will-o'-the-wisp has been traced to Burns and Smollett. It originally appeared, however, in Johnes' "Froissart." Describing the capture of St. Venaut, in 1383, by the troops under the command of the Bishop of Norwich, Froissart says that Sir William de Melle, who defended the place, was permitted by his captor to return to France as a prisoner on parole, "according to the manner in which all French and English gentlemen behave to one another in similar cases; but not so the Germans, who, whenever they take a prisoner, throw him into durance vile, loaded with irons, in order to gain a more considerable ransom."

THUG.

The word "thug," now so generally used to denote the "shoulder hitters" and thieves of our large cities, is derived from the Hindoo "thugna," to deceive.

MASON AND DIXON'S LINE.

On the 4th of August, 1763, Thomas and Richard Penn and Lord Baltimore, being together in London, agreed with Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two surveyors, to mark, run, settle and fix the boundary line between Maryland on one hand and Delaware and Pennsylvania on the other. They accomplished their work to within thirty-six miles, six chains and fifty links, when they were told by their Indian escorts that it was the will of the Sioux nation that the surveys should cease, and they determined accordingly. Mason died in Pennsylvania in 1787; Dixon died in Durham, Eng., in 1777.

EMERALD ISLE.

The epithet, as applied to Ireland, was first used by Dr. William Drennan, author of "Glendalloch," and other poems, who was born at Belfast, May 23, 1754.

PETER'S PENCE.

Offa, a Saxon Prince, to ingratiate himself in favor of the sovereign Pontiff, engaged to pay him a yearly donation for the support of an English college at Rome; and, in order to raise the sum, he imposed a tax of a penny on each house possessed of 30 pence a year. This imposition, being afterward levied on all England, was commonly denominated Peter's pence.

TRUE BLUE.

The first assumption of this phrase was led by the Covenanters, in opposition to the scarlet badge of Charles I., and hence it was taken up by the troops of Leslie and Montrose in 1639. The adoption of the color was one of those religious pedantries into which the Covenanters, in a pharisaical observance of the scriptural letter and the usage of the Hebrews, distingnished themselves. And thus they named their children Habbakkuk and Zerubbabel, and their chapels Zion and Ebenezer. They decorated their persons with ribbons, because the following sumptuary precept was given in the law of Moses: "Speak to the children of Israel, and tell them to make themselves fringes on the borders of their garments, putting in them ribbons of blue." Numbers, xv. 38.

OLD HARRY.

The popular attributes of the evil one were a human form, with horns, tail, and a cloven foot. These are very probably derived from the Grecian fables, and from the representations of the Greek satyrs and Roman fauns—the gods of the mountains and groves; and it is also probable that "Old Harry" was originally "Old Hairy." The satyrs were said to have hair like goats. "Shock" is a head of rough hair—a rough-haired dog. So there is doubtless an affinity between "Old Harry" or "Old Hairy," and "Old Shock," the English name given to the demon supposed to haunt roadsides and wild pathways. "The Lord Harry" may allude to the Scriptural terms, "the god of the world," the Prince of the powers of darkness.

JUST THE CHEESE.

This familiar vulgarism, used in commendation of a thing, is a mere Orientalism, meaning "just the thing," from cheez, Hindostance for "a thing."

GONE TO POT.

The phrase comes from a tailor in Samarcand, who, living near a cemetery, had an earthen vessel on his counter into which he cast a pebble whenever a corpse was carried past, and thus kept count of the daily interments. At last his own time came, and his neighbors, on inquiry after him, answered, "He has gone to pot, also."

TO GO THE WHOLE HOG.

Generally set down as an Americanism, but undoubtedly of Irish origin. Previous to the year 1825, when the Irish metallic currency was completely assimilated to the English, the silver shilling circulated in Ireland was equivalent to thirteen copper pennies, whereas a silver shilling of England was of the value of 12 pence. In Ireland the shilling was sometimes called "a thirteen," from the number of pence it contained, and was sometimes called "a hog." When a man had a convivial idea of spending an entire shilling on a friend, which figuratively meant that he would not be chary of expense, he was said to "go the whole hog."

Indian Strategy in Business.

When the Carson and Colorado railroad treated for the right of way through the Indian reservation at Walker lake, Nevada, the Indians agreed to receive, in full pay, $700 and the free shipment forever over the road of any fish or other produce which they might wish to bring to market between Hawthorne and the Mound house. Walker lake is swarming with fine trout. When the new road reaches it the Indians will be the bosses of the fish market of the State. They say that if Mr. Yerington had known how many fish they can catch in a day he would never have entered into such a contract. The Indians laid their wires for this thing long ago, and when Mr. Yerington visited Walker lake they put up a job on him. They invited him to spend a day fishing, which he did, but gave him a bait which fish absolutely avoid. Several of the bucks also fished with him, some using no bait at all. The result of the day's toil was a small white-fish and a couple of half-pound trout. The savages pretended that the day's sport had been very fine, and got up a big dance in honor of the catch, remarking that the fishing had never been so good for years. In an unguarded moment he signed the fish contract.—Carson Appeal.

"Missent."

How that word stamped on the envelope of a letter stares at us. It is not an apology or an excuse. It is simply the declaration of a fact, either carelessness or neglect, and in effect asks, what are you going to do about it. The letter on which it appears was important; on the information it contained depend a serious action, the taking a steamer for Europe, or the cars for some distant city. It may be it was a call for a surgeon, and a life hung in the balance. It should have been received twenty four or forty-eight hours ago, but it was missent. The direction was clear and plain, and as unlike the place to which it went as B is unlike A. But it was missent, and now its value is gone; it has come too late. Yesterday, or the day before, it was intensely important; to-day it is worthless. How imprudent every letter of that word looks, "Missent." Who cares? Who is responsible? No one. Missent tells the whole story; it is stamped on the envelope and that ends the matter. No one lies awake over it, no one thinks of it again. No one in all the world excepting the persons who sent it and those to whom it was directed have any trouble about it. Well, it is past. "What's the use of crying over spilt milk? make the best of it and let it go." But who is to repair the damage that has been done, or atone for the worry, the sorrow and the expense the trifling neglect cost? It might soothe the feelings to know just how it happened. But no, there it stands, the defiant, heartless word, giving no reason, hinting no redress, but merely stating the fact, "Missent."
—Country Journal.

Tips in England.

Ordinarily a charge of one shilling a day is put into the bill for "attendance;" and at hotels of the highest class the charge is more. This will cover fees for boot blacking as well as table service, and is, I suppose, the only compensation of the waiters. It often happens that the attendance is insufficient, one waiter being assigned to too large a number of guests. At restaurants, conducted on the old style, the waiter also expects something. The fee is never less than a penny; that is with most people the usual donation, but a larger sum will not be refused, if offered. The tendency is to abolish the custom of tips, and some of the better class of restaurants post notices that fees should not be given to the waiters. Great Britain, however, is very conservative; those who deem themselves possessed of privileges, by long use of prescriptive right, insist upon their fulfillment. The English waiter hardly thinks himself well treated unless feed by those he serves.—Foreign Letter.

BUSINESS & PLEASURE.

The Brook cigar is for sale at the Empire drugstore.

THE question now is who sells Dry Goods cheapest! As a large portion of the people know the guilty party, the balance might as well be posted, it is Archie Reid and, "don't you forget it."

The Brook cigar is the best nickle cigar in the city.

J. AND A. BAUMAN at their saloon on River street, have on draught the celebrated Frank Falk's Bavarian Beer, and Falk's Export Bottled Beer, by the case or dozen, delivered to any part of the city. This beer was awarded the first premium at the Industrial Exposition in San Francisco, and at the International Exposition, in Sidney, Australia. There is none better.

Eldredge, of the Empire drugstore, is the sole agent for the celebrated Brook cigar.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—Notice is hereby given that the firm of Sackett & Simons, shirt manufacturers, is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

Briefiets.

—Who yelled "fire" last night?

—Assemblyman John Huntley was in the city to-day.

—Rev. A. W. Case, of Waverly, Iowa, is in the city visiting friends.

—O. H. Orton, Esq., of Madison, was in the city to-day on business.

—Four tramps and one drunk were run into the county hotel last night.

—Mr. J. B. Messerschmidt, Sheriff of Jefferson county, was on our streets to-day.

—Senator Richardson and Assemblyman Winans are home for a Sunday visit, from Madison.

—The Skaylem house now has thirty boarders, six of whom are on a diet of bread and water.

—The Cotton Factory folks have completed a new wheel house in place of the one recently burned.

—We hear that Mr. John Rublee, of Beloit, had a valuable horse stolen on Thursday night of this week.

—Edward Wood was sent to the county jail to-day, by the municipal court, for ten days, on a bread and water diet.

—The firemen will nominate the candidates for Chief and Assistant engineers of the fire department, at the West side engine house this evening.

—The Temple of Honor have changed their meeting night from Friday to Monday night. The next meeting will be held at their hall on Monday evening, March 27th.

—Don't forget to reserve your seats for the Alice Oates opera bouffe entertainment for next Monday. It will be the rarest comic opera performance ever seen in Janesville.

—The officers of the cotton factory have decided to adopt a very excellent rule, and that is to stop the factory at nine o'clock on Saturday nights, instead of at twelve as heretofore.

—Mr. L. A. Warren, inspector of agencies, and adjuster of the Northwestern National Fire Insurance Company, of Milwaukee, is in the city looking after the interests of the company.

—There was a pleasant gathering of the members and friends of Court Street church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hogoboom last evening. It was a season of social profit as well as financial success.

—The cotton factory company purchased to-day by telegraph, at Memphis, forty-four thousand dollars worth of cotton, which we believe is the largest amount ever purchased by the company at any one time.

—Adjutant Newman, of the first battalion, has received an order from the Governor to muster in a company of militia at Monroe. The time when the organization will take place has not been decided upon.

—The lecture of Rev. Father O'Keefe, of Watertown, at St. Patrick's church last evening, was well attended, the Catholic Temperance society attending in a body in their regalia. While we were not present, we hear the lecture spoken of as one of the best ever listened to in this city.

—We have just received from Mr. W. S. Alexander, the general passenger and freight agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba railway, at St. Paul, a specimen of "No. 1 hard wheat," being a sample of over 9,000,000 bushels harvested on the lines of this road in the Red River Valley, in 1881.

—Mr. A. M. Porter, of the town of Turtle, to-day left a wolf skin with County Clerk Morgan, for which he received $11 State and county bounty. Mr. Porter had already received $16 bounty from the Sheepgrowers Association of the town of Turtle, making $27 bounty for the killing of the wolf.

—The County Clerk has received a supply of blank certificates, used for drawing the State bounties on the killing of wild animals, which are to be used on and after the first day of April. The only alteration in the certificate is that the chairman of the town board of supervisors must now certify "that the scalp of said wolf [or other wild animal] was removed in my presence," which is simply an addition to the old certificates.

—The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Lubbey—Ella—was surprised last evening by a party being held at her home in honor of her birthday. There was a large company present—fifty or more—and a general good time was had. The party was not only a surprise to Miss Ella, but the presentation to her of a pair of gold bracelets, was even a greater surprise. Refreshments were served in abundance, and an exceedingly happy evening was enjoyed by all present.

—Mrs. L. G. Fixen, of Albert Lea, Minnesota, will lecture at Court Street church on Sunday evening, on "The Ink-bottle vs the Whisky-jug." When Mrs. Fixen had prepared her new lecture, Miss Francis Willard wrote her as follows: "It was like you to get so 'bright' a wording for your new lecture, and I earnestly hope and expect that 'The Ink-bottle versus the Whisky-jug' will do a deal toward neutralizing the malignant power of the latter by the magic potency of the former."

The Weather.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer this morning at seven o'clock stood 37 degrees above zero, and at one o'clock in the afternoon at 46 degrees above. Clear. For the corresponding time last year the the thermometer stood 26 and 34 degrees above.

WASHINGTON, March 18, 1 a. m.—The following are the indications for to-day:

Lake region—Generally cloudy weather, rain or snow, easterly winds, becoming variable, falling barometer, during the day, stationary or slight rise in temperature, followed in the upper lake region during the night by colder north to

The Rifles Masquerade.

The masquerade of the Bower City Rifles, at their armory, last evening, was a great success in every particular. There were about one hundred couples wearing masks and disguises of various kinds, besides, nearly as many more, who participated in the dance without masks, and as lookers-on. Some of the characters were complete and as near realities as it is possible to make them. One of our prominent agricultural implement dealers, in our opinion, excelled all others, in his representation of a wild, untutored Indian Chief, with "heap squaw," and "jump so high," dialect. Many other disguises were complete, some very tasty, but, the characters, although well dressed, were poorly acted by the wearers. Mrs. E. Francl, of Watertown, was present and rented many of her handsome character costumes. The grandest surprise occurred about twelve o'clock, when the party unmasked. Many who, up to this time, were sanguine that they knew the wearers of certain costumes, were now convinced of their mistake. The merry dance continued until a late hour in the morning. Anderson's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The Rifles may well congratulate themselves upon the success of the party, and the happy and pleasant amusement of the occasion is past, and Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not raise the dead, will not cure you if your lungs are almost wasted by consumption. It is, however, unsurpassed both as a pectoral and alterative, and will cure obstinate and severe diseases of the throat and lungs, coughs, and bronchial affections. By virtue of its wonderful alterative properties it cleanses and enriches the blood, cures pimples, blotches, and eruptions, and causes even great eating ulcers to heal.

The Age of Miracles

The Sixth Alarm.

The sixth alarm of fire in Janesville for the year 1882, was sounded on the fire bells at nine o'clock last evening, and although the alarm was loud and long, it proved to be a delusion, a snare. The Engines, hose and hook and ladder trucks all turned out within a few seconds from the tap of the bells, and came face to face on the west end of Milwaukee street bridge, which brought a crowd of several thousand people together instantly. The alarm was caused by some one yelling "fire" in the neighborhood of the Rifles armory, and on reaching the house of No. 2, the boys commenced hitching, and some boy, without authority, pulled the bell, and away went the department.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," for all those weaknesses peculiar to women, is an unequalled remedy. Distressing backache and "bearing-down" sensation yeild to its strength-giving properties. By druggists.

The Concert.

There was a large gathering at the Guards' armory last evening to hear the concert given by that company. These concerts prove a profitable place of resort to that portion of our community who love music and appreciate literature, and it is with no little degree of satisfaction that all interested can boast that the concerts are well attended.

The clarionet duet by Jacob and Henry Giess, the first piece on the programme was so well given as to win an encore; and the piano duet by Mrs. J. D. King and Miss Franc Whiting had a recall, which was answered by Mrs. King. Miss Araby Sutherland, who is an accomplished pianiste, rendered a very interesting solo. Miss Ida Schicker gave three songs, which were sang with good voice and with excellent effect. Two tenor solos were sung by Professor Underhill. Charlie Patterson, who never fails to make plenty of laughter and win recalls, sang a German song in character. Mr. Horace McElroy appeared in the role of a humorous lecturer, taking for his subject "Dogs." It was decidedly good, and was well appreciated.

Get The Original.

Dr. Pierce's "Pellets"—the original "Little Liver Pills" [sugar coated]—cure sick and billious headache, sour stomach, and billious attacks, By druggists.

The Cotton Factory.

The directors of the cotton factory have decided to rebuild the frame weaving room at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Bailey, the superintendent of the factory, will go East next week to purchase machinery, and while there will secure the best weaving apparatus made in this country. The work of rebuilding will begin at once, and if there is no delay in getting the necessary machinery, the weaving room, which today is in ashes, will be in operation in three months.

The enterprise, energy, and good management which have followed the officers of the cotton factory company since its organization, are still with them, and will bring the weaving room to an early completion.

They Waived Examination.

As stated in last evening's Gazette, O'Hara, Knowles and Pulker, were before the municipal court yesterday afternoon, and waived examination. O'Hara and Knowles were committed, but Frank Pulker was more fortunate, he succeeding in procuring the requisite bail, and was released. It is generally understood that Frank Pulker has "given the butter business away," and that he will, when the trial comes off, be put upon the stand as a witness for the prosecution of O'Hara and Knowles. We do not know what, if any, influence has been brought to bear upon young Pulker, that warrants this course of action on his part. None of the boys seem to brood much trouble concerning the result of the trial; in fact they do not feel the least concerned.

The London Lancet.

The "London Lancet" says: "Many a life has been saved by the moral courage of the sufferer', and many a life has been saved by taking SPRING BLOSSOM in case of billious fever, indigestion or liver complaints." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

STRAY PERSONALS.

Gathered in Western Iowa from Various Sources—The Whereabouts of Former Janesvillians and What They Are Doing.

It is surprising how many former residents of Janesville and vicinity one meets and hears of in a hurried trip westward; and thinking that some of these, gathered haphazardly, might prove interesting to the readers of the Gazette, we give the following:

Mr. True, a relative of John R. Bennett, Esq., and a former resident of Janesville, is now at Osage, Iowa, and is about to start a branch store at Oakland, Nebraska.

Jabe Hunter, one of Clinton's old residents, makes Omaha his headquarters, and travels from there. His brother is express messenger on the Sioux City and St. Paul road.

Conductor Bond, who runs daily from Missouri Valley to Council Bluffs, used to be a brakeman on the Northwestern with headquarters at Janesville. He was formerly on the train of Lou Walters who now runs the Barrington express.

Ed. L. Thurber, who has been one of the most popular of the Iowa conductors on the C. B. & Q., died recently in Council Bluffs. He was a brother-in-law of Conductor James Dean, so well known at Janesville, and also a brother-in-law of Al Shumway, who runs from Portage City to La Crosse. Conductor Thurber some years ago was a brakeman under conductor Peter Rock, of this city. His death was a peculiar one. He had recently been vaccinated, and while that was woking, he had the misfortune to be thrown from a buggy, causing a bad fracture of the same arm. The vaccination and fracture together, resulted in blood-poisoning, causing his death. He left a wife and three children.

John M. Smith, so well known as the leader of Burr Robbins' band, has been with Sewell's Northern Orchestra, playin for clubs and private parties in Western Iowa for twenty-three weeks past, and missing but one night. At a party in Des Moines, Johnnie had the honor of a personal compliment from the Governor, who was so well pleased that between dances he paid his respects in person to Professor Smith, and expressed his satisfaction at the music and especially on Smith's "calling off." The orchestra runs from Des Moines taking in towns on the Des Moines & Fort Dodge, the Northwestern, the Sioux City & Pacific, the Chicago & Rock Island, and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy.

Phil. Pickering, an old resident of Janesville, is now engineer on the Northwestern and runs from Boone to Council Bluffs. He is the oldest man on the road west of Boone. He has a brother, Geo. Pickering, a cabinet-maker in this city.

Thomas Keating, a brother-in-law of Marshal Hogan, lives at Boone, and runs a switch engine there. He was formerly a partner with Michael Keating, in the grocery business in Janesville.

Engineer McNeill, who runs from Maple River Junction, on the Northwestern road, to Mapleton, used to live in this city, where his mother and several sisters still live.

Another former resident of Janesville, is conductor Dan Darley, who now runs from Avoca to Harlin, on the Chicago & Rock Island road.

Fred Delamatyr, whose boyhood was spent in Evansville, where his father preached, is now occupying a lucrative position at Omaha in the Union Pacific office. He inspects all the money received, and is an expert in detecting counterfeits.

Professor Woolett, the well known singer, for a while at Janesville, is now at Des Moines teaching vocal music. He has a popular quartet named after himself.

Mrs. D. Leon, who was known in Janesville as Miss Hannah Connors, and who was for some time an attache of the Myers house, is now living happily in Des Moines where her husband is financially prosperous. Mrs. Leon's sister, now deceased, was the wife of Mr. Lilly, of this city.

Mrs. Hayden, of Stewart, Iowa, used to be known at Emerald Grove, as Miss Stoller.

Clerk Wheeler, of the Ogden house, Council Bluffs, formerly attended school at Monroe and then at Madison.

Frank Ford, formerly of this city, and brother of our J. L. Ford, is running an extensive shirt factory in Council Bluffs, has a large, elegant residence and is prospering in all his ways. He still loves music and leads the Congregational choir.

As many of the readers of the Gazette are aware, Nate Bailey and Frank Barnett are located at Cedar Rapids, and their many Janesville friends hear often from them.

Mrs. Levi Hubbard, nee Ruth Delano formerly of this city, is living near Mapleton. She is a half-sister to Wesley Cobb, of Janesville.

John B. Hemingway, is doing business at Le Mars, and we are happy to say, he is prospering.

Conductor John Hutson, running from St. Paul to Sioux City, is another Janesville boy, whose prosperity, so well deserved, is familiar to the readers of the Gazette.

Thomas Tracy, now a fireman on the Chicago & Rock Island road, used to be a farmer, and lived about eight miles west of Janesville.

Ben Brooks, formerly the landlord at Brodhead, is now keeping a successful hotel at Fort Dodge.

L. A. Williams, leader of the Beloit band, an organization which plays for private parties, clubs and so on, is running from Marshalltown to Rock Island, Davenport, Sterling, Illinois, and back again. Thomas B. Northup, the manager, and Charles Gault, one of the members, are from Beloit.

Edward Zincbeck, stock-dealer at Glidden, Iowa, keeps about 275 head of cattle belonging to Charles Wright, of Sharon. Among them is one yoke of cattle weighing 4,000 pounds.

of this city, is on a farm four miles from Spencer, Iowa, where he owns a section of land, and has a hundred or more acres under cultivation.

Frank Guernsey, civil engineer, formerly of this city, is living at LeMars, Iowa, and is doing well.
